<sup>10</sup>Expenses include deferred income tax. Deferred income tax represents an estimate of the Fund's potential tax liability if it were to be recognized in the portfolio. These estimates may not be reliably predicted and may vary greatly from year to year depending on the nature of the Fund's investment, the performance of those investments and general market conditions. The deferred tax liability could result in a loss to the Fund's net asset value and therefore an investment in the Fund could lose money.

Yield

Non Standard Yield <sup>11</sup>	6.42%
30 Day SEC Yield <sup>12</sup>	0.00%
30 Day Yield <sup>13</sup>	4.25%

<sup>9</sup>The Expense Limitation and Reimbursement Agreement has the effect of capping the annual operating expenses, excluding deferred income tax expenses, at 1.50%. The Advisor has contractually agreed to pay or absorb certain fees and expenses of the Fund until at least May 31, 2012, to ensure that Total Annual Fund Operating Expenses (exclusive of the investment advisory fee and any 12b-1 fees, interest expenses, taxes, such as deferred income tax expenses, brokerage commissions, acquired fund fees and expenses and extraordinary expenses) will not exceed 0.15%. This fee limitation is subject to possible recoupment by the Advisor from the Fund in future years on a rolling three year basis (within the three years after the fees and/or expenses have been paid or absorbed) if such recoupment can be achieved within the foregoing expense limits.

Master Limited Partnerships at a Glance

Energy infrastructure MLPs own and operate hard assets which transport and store liquid hydrocarbons and natural gas. The majority of these companies operate fee-based business models, meaning they receive a specified tariff for services rendered, similar to a toll road. MLPs that do not take ownership of the commodity are therefore less sensitive to price fluctuations driven by commodity supply/demand.

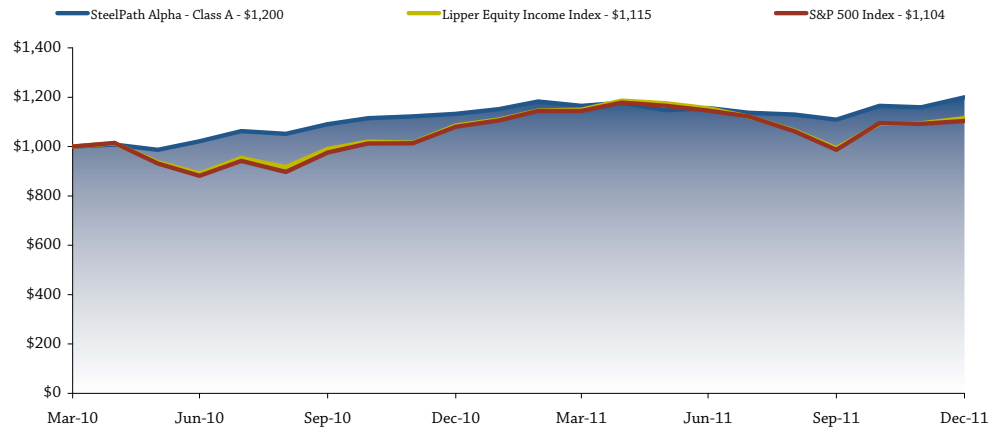

Energy infrastructure is an emerging asset class experiencing rapid growth and has returned approximately 17%<sup>1</sup> annually over the past ten years, driven by nearly double-digit distribution returns. The United States requires more than $200 billion of energy infrastructure investment over the next decade<sup>2</sup>, underpinning future growth.

Investors may benefit from attractive levels of tax-deferred income and low correlations with the broader market. Inflation protection comes from both the inherent value of long-life physical assets (i.e. pipelines) and from the application of federally regulated pricing models to crude oil and refined products pipelines.

Risks of Investing

Investing in MLPs differs from investments in common stock including risks related to cash flow, dilution and voting rights. Investments are concentrated in the energy infrastructure sector; with an exclusive emphasis on securities issued by MLPs. Concentration of the Fund's investment in the energy infrastructure sector, with an exclusive emphasis on securities issued by MLPs, may increase price fluctuation. Energy infrastructure companies are subject to risks specific to the industry such as fluctuations in commodity prices, reduced volumes of natural gas or other energy commodities, changes in the economy or the regulatory environment or extreme weather. MLPs may trade less frequently than larger companies due to their smaller capitalizations which may result in erratic price movement or difficulty in buying or selling. Investing in ETFs and other investment companies may involve duplication of advisory fees and other expenses. The Fund will be taxable as a regular corporation, or "C" corporation, and will pay federal, state and local taxes at the Fund level on its taxable income. The Fund will be subject to certain MLP tax risks and risks associated with accounting for its deferred tax liability which could materially reduce the net asset value, which in turn, could significantly impact performance. MLPs are subject to significant regulation and may be adversely affected by changed in the regulatory environment including the risk that an MLP could lose its tax status as a partnership which could reduce the value and income produced from the Fund. Prior to 2009, the Advisor had limited experience managing a mutual fund.
